Dear Mr. Ransfield,

With reference to your advertisement in "The Chicago Tribune", dated 3 November 2011, I hereby express my keen interest in working with your firm as an Immigration Paralegal.

I have six years experience in this area that has made me a fully competent professional. I am looking for an opportunity to work with a firm like yours that is equally well known for professionalism and competence.

My experience with my previous employers has brought me in touch with all the dimensions of immigration. I am skilled with researching the background of clients and looking into relevant laws and procedures of immigration. In these six years, I have successfully assisted my employers in providing visas to numerous clients whose visas were wrongfully questioned. I have also been involved with some high profile cases related to the grant of visas to some foreign political dissidents and their dependents. My research regarding the background of these clients went a long way in facilitating a desirable result of the trial.

I am a law graduate with the necessary license to operate as a paralegal. I am fluent in Russian and Romanian, making me more suitable to deal with East European immigration. I have a professional yet compassionate approach towards my job. I am experienced in providing advice with necessary clients, who have been wrongfully denied their rights.

It will be a great experience to work with a firm like yours that applies its legal talents professionally without compromising an ethics and without missing the big picture. Given an opportunity, I will employ my talents to their full use. You can contact me on the telephone number or the email address I have stated above.

Yours Sincerely,
David Simmons
